

Tag Day-How!

The Morning Call

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarlyworks.lvhn.org/historicalarchives>

Part of the Medicine and Health Sciences Commons

Published In/Presented At

Tag day- How! (1909, May 11). The Morning Call.

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by LVHN Scholarly Works. It has been accepted for inclusion in LVHN Scholarly Works by an authorized administrator. For more information, please contact LibraryServices@lvhn.org.

TAG DAY—HOW!

The nicest game is one in which all can join and are made welcome. On Hospital Day everyone will be able to play tag. Little ones, grown ups, rich ones, poor ones, high and low ones and all are urged to do so. Get a tag early in the day, and wear it. It will make you feel happy no matter how little or how much you feel able to pay for it, to any one of the corps of taggers, in the open air carnival, Saturday, May 15. The needs of the hospital are on the increase, realizing this we are going to have "Tag Day," but it also wants to feel the warm sympathetic interest of our citizens and without which no institution flourishes or is able to do the work for which it was placed in the community.

This interest is just as intense and effective when expressed in cheerfully given small sums, as large ones, only let every one feel that this Hospital Day will cause our city to feel proud.

Perhaps the spirit of Tag Day is best illustrated by an incident which happened in Washington not long ago. A Hospital Tag Day was observed there. As ex-President Roosevelt was entering his carriage at the White House, he was tagged by a young lady, and with his famous smile, presented the cause she represented with a five dollar bill. Neglecting to put the tag in his buttonhole on leaving the carriage at the Capitol, he was again approached, as he had left it in the carriage and knowing he should have worn his tag, he accepted the second, gave another contribution, fastened this one in his lapel and wore it all day.

