Credit Union Installs ATM Machines

People First Credit Union announces the installation of two automated teller machines at Cedar Crest & I-78 and 17th & Chew. Popularly known as ATMs, the banking devices will be located outside the cafeterias at both sites, and were scheduled for installation during the first two weeks of this month.

The ATMs allow 24-hour access for withdrawals, transfers and account inquiries, and will accept cards issued with a M.O.M., MAC or Plus System logo. The cards are available to members of the credit union.

Beginning Thursday, March 18, the office at Cedar Crest & I-78 will change its hours to 9 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. The office will be closed from 1 to 1:45 p.m. That means the Cedar Crest & I-78 office will be open from 9 a.m. to 5:15 p.m. Monday through Friday, except for the lunch hour.

Hours at 17th & Chew are 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, and from 1 to 4 p.m. on Thursday.

The credit union continues an incentive program for checking accounts by offering 50 free checks to new account holders. The accounts have no charge per check, no minimum balance, no monthly fees, but do carry overdraft protection and are interest bearing. The free check offer continues until March 31.

Phone numbers for the two hospital locations are ext. 8404 at Cedar Crest & I-78 and ext. 9499 at 17th & Chew.

Jane Trotter, director of volunteers, American Cancer Society, Lehigh Valley Unit, chats with Sandra Smith, RN, director, Comprehensive Community Cancer Center, about the upcoming Daffodil Days sales at the hospital and many other locations around the Lehigh Valley between March 24 and 28. Behind is the framework of the hospital's new Morgan Cancer Center, which continues to progress toward an autumn opening date. For a report on progress at the site, see page 4.

About Those &#@Δ! Gates...

If you're certain that you got a bum badge because you're having problems opening parking lot gates there are two possibilities:

- 1) You're not supposed to park in that lot at that time.
- 2) You're not using the card reader correctly. Before you growl phrases that your mother shouldn't hear, try inserting the identification card, with your picture up, on the right side of the reader and move it to the left. To put it another way, from the front of your car toward the back.

The reader examines the magnetic strip on the back of the card in only one direction, and information from the card is relayed to a central computer. If the coding on the card matches the current gate schedule, the gate opens. If the card is run through backwards, the coding will obviously be incorrect and the gate won't budge.

About Our People

A paper reporting on the incidence of hemorrhage following colonoscopic polypectomy at Lehigh Valley Hospital was recently accepted for publication by the journal Diseases of the Colon and Rectum. The study was authored by Lester Rosen, MD, division of Colorectal Surgery; David Bub, a medical student from New York University; James Reed III, PhD, director, Department of Research; and Susan Nastasee, surgical editor, Department of Surgery.

The institutional study analyzed 4,721 patients who underwent colonoscopy and polypectomy from 1987 to 1991 at the hospital and revealed a significantly low hemorrhage rate of 0.4 percent. The results compared favorably to 15 published studies that reported rates ranging from 0.3 percent to 6.1 percent with an average of 1.9 percent.

John Garber, LSW, ACSW, Clinical Social Work, recently received notification that he passed the examination for the Academy of Certified Social Workers. Garber works in the Emergency Department at 17th & Chew with psychiatric patients.

Barbara A. Elmore, CCP, and David A. Palanzo, CCP, Perfusion, attended the annual meeting of the American Academy of Cardiovascular Perfusion in San Antonio, Tex. Palanzo presented a manuscript titled "The Effect of Left Ventricular Venting on Postoperative Lung Function" and moderated the scientific sessions concerning clinical gas studies.

Polly Wertman, RRT, staff therapist, Respiratory Care, was selected as that department's employee of the month for her outstanding clinical performance. The department's Reward and Recognition Committee made the selection.

George J. Lukac, vice president, Development, recently became one of an elite group of the 13,000-member National Society of Fund Raising Executives to achieve the designation of certified fund raising executive. Lukac, who also serves as president of Lehigh Valley Hospital Trust Fund, says that to become certified, a candidate must possess an accepted level of fund-raising experience, be successful in helping to raise a significant amount of money for non-profit organizations, and contribute to the advancement of fund raising and philanthropic management. Each candidate must also pass an examination that measures skills and knowledge in all aspects of the field.

Kim Sterk, RN, BSN, CDE, nurse coordinator of the Helwig Diabetes Center, recently presented "Diabetes and the Elderly" to the nurse's aide students at the Hispanic American Organization.

Karen Friedly, RD, certified diabetes educator at Helwig Diabetes Center, was the guest speaker at a recent support group meeting of parents with children who have diabetes. The presentation, "Fun with Food," included healthy snack ideas. Children and parents had a hands-on experience using food models.

George Arangio, MD, of Valley Sports and Arthritis Surgeons, has been appointed visiting research scientist for the Institute for Biomedical Engineering at Lehigh University for 1993. Arangio was also the program director for the Second Annual Musculoskeletal Symposium: Update on Upper Extremity Injury in the Athlete. Participants included Thomas Meade, MD, and Thomas Dickson, MD.

Joan M. Linnander, director, Perinatal Outreach; Dhalma Moyer and Damarie Lugo, outreach workers; and Barbara Rodriguez, patient advocate, attended the Governor's Commission for Children and Families held at the governor's residence in Harrisburg on Jan. 8. Eileen Casey, chair, invited the outreach staff to present the program "A Better Start" as part of the commission's forum, "Reaching Out to Moms and Children."

Winners of Valentine's Candy Baskets were recently announced by the Recreation Committee. They included Judy Cihylik (7B), Tracy Wenner (Office of Education), Norm Weaver, (SPD), and Vivian Halal, (Finance).

Heather Yerger, Radiology, married Phillip Xanthopoulos on Jan. 16.

A 'Sort Of' Farewell for Maria Dresen

It was 1955, and she was on her honeymoon — but it was no vacation. Maria Dresen, just arrived from the former West Germany, was looking for work.

She fastidiously studied English shorthand and won a position as the secretary in the Counseling Center for Alcoholism at The Allentown Hospital.

Now, nearly 40 years later, she is retiring — sort of.

The assistant director of Volunteer Services has no plans to part ways with Lehigh Valley Hospital. She plans to work part time and will herself become a volunteer.

"I have too many ties to the hospital to just walk away," she says. That's because her many friends among the corps of volunteers she works with at Cedar Crest & I-78 "are like a family to me because of their caring and courage."

But the native of Bonn, Germany, has a tall stack of plans, beginning with organizing a family history. "I have a disgustingly large family," she chuckles, most of which is in the Rhineland of Germany. Of some 48 living cousins, she was the only emigrant and she wants her children to have a personal who's who.

She also plans to study history and religions and how they have affected each other at either Muhlenberg College or Cedar Crest College, simply out of fascination with a topic of long interest. "This is something just for Maria," she says.

After six years of secretarial work in the late 1950s, Dresen resigned to raise her own family — but was hardly away from the hospital.

Her late husband, Karl-Albert Dresen, MD, was an internist and nephrologist who is credited with establishing the kidney unit at The Allentown Hospital. The very first dialysis machine was a gift from one of his patients.

After Dr. Dresen passed away, Maria Dresen needed to work to help provide for college educations for her children, and returned to the hospital first in a part time capacity and then full time as the assistant director of volunteers. She also serves on the hospital's Board of Associates.

It represented a major turning point in her life. "I have grown and learned to appreciate all the volunteers, from 14 to 86 years of age. It is such a diverse group of people, from all walks of life! But they interact as equals, and everyone brings his or her special knowledge."

Many of the volunteers struggle with their own medical crises, but show up for scheduled hours and do their share anyway. "You would not believe what some of them tolerate while they give to this hospital," she says. "They have been a constant inspiration to me."

Dresen keeps a steady hand on what appears on the surface to be utter chaos, juggling constant and varied requests for volunteer service. This means mounds of mailing work, delivery of flowers, escorting discharged patients to waiting cars, and a host of other details throughout the hospital. Through it all, she never seems

A reception to honor Maria Dresen, assistant director, Volunteer Services, will be held Thursday, March 18 from 2 to 4 p.m. in Classroom I at Cedar Crest & I-78. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Of all the volunteers, the young ones have a special place in Maria Dresen's heart. Among the newest to learn the pleasures of delivering flowers are Abby Frobese and Jessica Norton, both from Eyer Junior High School in Macungie.

Cancer Center Work Remains on Track

Question: What's the purpose of those huge tarps draped like curtains on the framework of the Morgan Cancer Center?

A) They keep the workmen warm.

B) They add to the structural integrity of the building

C) They hide what's going on inside.

If you took a stab at B), you guessed correctly. The primary purpose of the huge tarps is to create vast rooms that can be heated after concrete floors are poured. To set properly, the concrete must be kept at a minimum of 50 degrees, and as part of the quality control measures, special thermometers are used to check the temperature of the setting concrete.

The concrete is poured over specially ridged metal floors in which thousands of mushroom-shaped studs have been welded. These lock the poured floors into place on enormous pans.

Despite the vagaries of the winter weather, construction on the huge project remains fairly much on schedule, according to construction manager Robert Beyer. Poor weather can slow work down, while finer days cause it to speed up.

Inside the framework at Cedar Crest & I-78, a wide variety of activity continues undaunted. In the basement, work continues on preparing special spaces for linear accelerators, while on higher floors the form of offices and patient treatment areas continues to unfold. Beyer points to intersections of steel where highly skilled welders are literally fusing the framework of the building into one solid piece. It represents the highest quality in building structure. Below, the steel is covered with a special insulation to protect it from melting should there ever be a fire.

While there's still one more floor of steel to go, many of the precast walls are just about ready for installation. Beyer says a taller crane than those that have been on the site will be required to put the last of the steel and those precast pieces into place. In the end, the walls will weigh more than the structural steel — and those pieces are measured in thousands of pounds each.

Because of the size of the crane and the weight of the pieces, the main driveway must be temporarily relocated into the front parking lot for a period. The new traffic pattern will be similar to the one early in the project, carrying the traffic out around the cancer center in a larger, sweeping arc.

Walls can go up on the existing structure once the floors are set.

In what's known as a "topping off" ceremony, the last of the steel is expected to be set in place

Reaching for the sky is the structural framework of the atrium area, which will open on both ends for public access

Ken Erland, administrator, Facilities Planning and Construction, checks a gloomy-looking cavern that will become a bright and airy radiation therapy area. A staggering increase in patient volume in recent years has prompted planning for as many as four linear accelerators on the ground floor. Opposite: decking of sheet metal is prepared for concrete to create the first floor, along the access road.

around the last week of April. Beyer says it will be a horizontal beam near the front of the sweeping curved section along the entrance road.

Once the building gets its walls — which will be similar to a sample of wall found near the front entrance to Cedar Crest & I-78 — work begins in earnest on the interior of the structure, expected to ready be for use in late autumn.

The building represents the largest single addition to the Cedar Crest & I-78 facility since the main hospital opened, and it will consolidate virtually all of the outpatient oncology services of Lehigh Valley Hospital.

United Way: Diversity in Giving

The Community Giving Committee, which represents employees in the annual United Way campaign, reports that about 41 percent of the more than $130,000 in donations be distributed through the usual funding processes, while 44 percent specified "targeted care choices" among United Way supported agencies.

More than $57,000 will go to traditional community care organizations. Second on the list of preferences for donations were United Way targeted basic needs, which will get nearly $21,000.

But after that, employees made a huge range of individual choices of both United Way and non-

United Way organizations to support.

Popular were the Helwig Diabetes Center, the Burn Prevention Foundation, Lehigh Valley Home Care, Lehigh Valley Hospice, Lehigh Valley Hospital and both healthcare and child care agencies generally.

A number supported the American Red Cross, Turning Point of the Lehigh Valley, the Salvation Army and the Great Valley Girl Scout Council.

All in all there were a total of 1,935 choices made for the $131,314.45 collected by the campaign last fall.

Letters: Comments From Those We've Served

His Spirit Will Live On

Recently, my wife and I experienced the loss of our infant son, Nathan. As you can well imagine, it has been and continues to be a very difficult time for us.

During the short time that we had with Nathan, we were blessed with a very compassionate and gifted staff of doctors and nurses in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit as well as the Pediatric Unit. The dedication of this group of individuals was second to none. Our family honestly believes that many of the doctors and nurses went "above and beyond" their assigned duties to make a very difficult time for us less painful.

We consider ourselves very fortunate to have had Dr. Mari Jo Zelinka, a neonatologist, as our son's physician. Dr. Zelinka is a very talented and compassionate individual. She treated our family with the utmost amount of concern and dignity. She treated Nathan as the individual that he was and not as a recipient of a rare affliction.

We believe that the spirit of Nathan will live on through the outstanding service that Dr. Zelinka and her colleagues provide for other children in the NICU of Lehigh Valley Hospital.

The Other Side of the Record

I just spent a week as a patient at Cedar Crest & I-78 after undergoing a thoractomy on Feb. 8. I'm sure you're aware that surgery and hospitalization can be a frightening experience for anyone; for someone like myself, with more than a little medical knowledge, it can be even more so.

In light of all the criticism that has been aimed at the entire healthcare field, I feel compelled to write to express my sincere thanks and appreciation to each and every member of the Lehigh Valley Hospital staff with whom I came in contact. Without exaggeration, everyone from nursing, to housekeeping, to food service, to the radiology escorts, and everyone else I can't specifically remember, did everything humanly possible to make my stay as pleasant and comfortable as possible.

I've obviously dealt with many of these same employees from the other end of the medical record; being on this side, however, was quite an experience. We should all be proud of the people we have that make Lehigh Valley Hospital the premier institution that it is.

Larry R. Glazerman, MD

A Job Very Well Done

I was admitted into your fine institution on Feb. 12 as a result of an automobile accident. I had facial lacerations, a cut ear that required 20 stitches, a broken rib and a broken neck.

Thanks to the outstanding personnel you have working there, I was released eight days later.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to each and every one of the members of your staff. Thanks to them, I'll be able to walk the rest of my life instead of being in a wheel chair. Could you please see to it that each department involved in my case, from MedEvac to the surgeons and nurses, the cooks (the food was great) to the people that brought me water and cleaned my room, all know my — and my family's — appreciation for a job that was very well done.

I wish you continued success in treating other people like myself. I'll never be able to repay you for what you have done, but I will thank God every day that He has allowed people like yourselves into my life. Thanks again, and you all will always be in my prayers.

Mike Shirey

The Spotless Floors

Both myself and my husband, who was a patient at the hospital in December want to express our thanks to your staff for a well-run hospital. I cannot express how grateful I am for the care he received and the manner in which it was carried out. His doctors — Dr. Nicholas and Dr. Post — plus all who were involved in his care were

Diabetes Alert's Message: Take a Free Test

On March 24, thousands of people in the Lehigh Valley will take a test to determine if they are at risk for the fourth leading cause of death in America: diabetes.

And, in support of the American Diabetes Association's American Diabetes Alert, the Helwig Diabetes Center at 1243 S. Cedar Crest will pitch in with risk tests.

Kim Sterk, RN, certified diabetes educator at Helwig, estimates that 27,000 area residents have diabetes — but don't know it. "This lack of awareness is tragic because people often discover their diabetes only after they are treated for one of the disease's terrible complications," she says.

Among the common complications are heart disease, stroke, kidney disease, blindness and lower limb amputation.

The simple test is in the form of a booklet that asks a series of questions that relate to warning signs and genetic factors. Self-scoring allows the participant to become aware of relative risk and take appropriate action.

Early detection is crucial in the treatment of the disease.

Among typical warning signs are excessive thirst, frequent urination, extreme fatigue, unexplained weight loss and occasional blurry vision. Age and weight can be factors, as well as family history. Black Americans, Hispanics and American Indians also have higher risk.

The test is free, and can be obtained simply by calling the Helwig Diabetes Center at ext. 9557. "The American Diabetes Alert is our one-day call to action to everyone in the area, especially the undiagnosed, to get tested and know for sure," Sterk says.

There is no cure for diabetes. More than 750,000 people will be diagnosed this year, and 150,000 will die from the complications of the disease.

flustered — in fact, she appears to be having a jolly time.

"I tell you this: I have enjoyed working in Volunteers every day, without exception," she says. But now it is time to pursue other interests too, and so, at 65, retirement beckons. It is not goodbye. In her native language, the farewell is auf wiedersehen, which means "until we meet again."

just wonderful.

(The) cleanliness of the hospital as a whole surpasses any I have ever been in. I noticed one thing in particular, and that was there was no build-up of wax anywhere to be found around the edges of the floor.

While my husband was in the hospital, I was watching the (Morgan) Cancer Center building being erected. I am sure this will prove to be a benefit to the communities and it, too, will be run with care and compassion to the patients that are admitted to this special wing.
