Announcing New and Expanded Colleague Engagement Committees

You may be able to get involved in a committee at your work location.

LVHN Insider

Friday, March 11, 2022

This message is from Lynn Turner, Senior Vice President and Chief Human Resources Officer.

During the recent Mid-Year Pulse Survey, we asked colleagues to share ideas to enhance workplace enjoyment at LVHN.

Given your feedback, multiple engagement committees have been formed or expanded throughout our health network. There are now engagement committees at LVH–Cedar Crest, LVH–Muhlenberg, LVH–Hazleton, LVH–Schuylkill, LVH–Pocono and LVHN–Mack Boulevard. LVPG is currently creating their committee as well.

These engagement committees will create location-specific fun and joyful events as well as events that can be implemented throughout LVHN. Examples of past events include Jersey Day, suggested by the LVH–Cedar Crest committee and implemented network-wide, and location-specific events like chili cook-offs.

To facilitate and provide guidance to these committees, Karla Bachl's role will be expanded to include colleague engagement. Her new title is Administrator, Colleague and Volunteer Engagement. She will also chair the network's reward and recognition committee.

If you are interested in joining an engagement committee or have an idea for one of the committees, please contact Karla Bachl at karla\_m.bachl@lvhn.org. She will put you in touch with the respective committee lead.

Thank you for participating in our surveys so your voice is heard and actions can be taken to improve your experience at LVHN.

Introducing the LVHN Center for Virtual Care

Learn how the center will enhance access to safe, quality virtual care offerings.

LVHN Insider

Monday, March 14, 2022

The COVID-19 public health emergency accelerated our need to develop virtual care services, and it has become necessary to expand LVHN's virtual care capacity and program offerings to enhance access to safe, quality care. We stepped up to this challenge by establishing the LVHN Center for Virtual Care (CVC), led by Robert Kruklitis, MD, Vice President of Transformation, Joe Tracy, Vice President of Connected Care and Innovation, and Brian Leader, Vice President Operations and Service Lines.

Primary responsibilities of the Center for Virtual Care include:

- Implementing a standardized virtual care request process to evaluate new programs for launch
- Optimizing existing programs
- Providing operational support
- Overseeing program performance

The center will review all virtual care requests to ensure programs are aligned with our health network's strategy and goals. The center also will ensure all virtual care offerings at LVHN are of the highest quality.

If you have a virtual care question, want to discuss a potential program or wish to submit a proposed project, please call 484-862-3600 or email LVHNCVC@lvhn.org.

COVID-19 Projection Update – March 14

We have fewer than 80 COVID-19 patients in LVHN hospitals.

LVHN Insider

Monday, March 14, 2022

The better days you worked so hard to create are nearly here. We now have fewer than 80 patients with COVID-19 in LVHN hospitals. That number is expected to continue to decline. See the graph below and information about what it means for you.

What it means

- On March 6, there were 79 patients in LVHN hospitals with COVID-19. Very few of these patients are in our ICUs or on ventilators.
- Even though we adjusted our visitation policy to reflect improving COVID-19 conditions, masking remains required for anyone working in or visiting LVHN facilities.
- As the region's leader in COVID-19 care, our patients, families, colleagues and communities are counting on us to exercise the best medical judgement that will help protect them and their loved ones.
- Masks are a proven method for preventing the spread of COVID-19. We will continue to monitor our masking policy based on community risk guidelines provided by the CDC. As of now, our communities are considered medium risk for COVID-19 spread.
- The pandemic is not over and our most vulnerable citizens remain at risk.

Get your booster shot; encourage family and friends to do the same

- LVHN encourages colleagues to get a COVID-19 booster shot.
  - Remind people to visit LVHN.org/vaccines for information about COVID-19 vaccines.

Deborah Bren, DO, Pays Tribute to Trailblazers Who Inspire Her

Elizabeth Blackwell and Florence Nightingale left a powerful legacy.

LVHN Insider

Wednesday, March 16, 2022

Deborah Bren, DO, is a family medicine physician and Medical Staff President at Lehigh Valley Health Network. She honors the generations of women who have paved the way for her own career in health care during Women’s History Month.

Elizabeth Blackwell was the first woman in America to receive a medical degree. She faced discrimination and multiple obstacles in college but ultimately earned the respect of her professors and classmates, graduating first in her class in 1849. In 1868, she opened a medical college in New York City. By the time she died, there were hundreds of women in medical practice.

Florence Nightingale is responsible for elevating the profession of nursing to an honorable status. She not only delivered exemplary personal care, but also authored numerous books about health care issues and started a nursing school. Her common sense and foresight helped transform hospitals to healthier settings and lowered death rates.

These two women were born within months of each other in 1821. Despite enduring many hardships, they continued working in their chosen vocations and raised the standard of health care for everyone. I believe that they experienced significant joy and satisfaction along the way. That joy and satisfaction likely cascaded to their patients as well as to their colleagues and students. They inspired, taught and trained several generations of nurses and doctors over the years.

It's important to celebrate Women's History Month because it reminds us to pause and reflect on the generations of women who have raised the bar for our health care profession. I am grateful for colleagues like you who will make history by inspiring, teaching and training those brilliant colleagues that will come after us and ultimately help care for us. This and every month, let's heed the words of Maya Angelou: "When you learn, teach. When you get, give."

LVHN Receives High Honors as a CME Provider

LVHN Department of Education received Accreditation with Commendation from the Pennsylvania Medical Society.

LVHN Insider

Friday, March 11, 2022

LVHN's Department of Education received Accreditation with Commendation from the Pennsylvania Medical Society, something only 10 other hospitals in the state have achieved.

Accreditation with Commendation recognizes the achievements of CME providers that advance interprofessional collaborative practice, address public health priorities, create behavioral change, show leadership, leverage educational technology and demonstrate the impact of education on health care professionals and patients.

The Pennsylvania Medical Society accredits organizations and institutions to provide continuing medical education to physicians.

To receive continued accreditation, LVHN completed a written self-study, including evidence in eight commendation categories and 12 complete educational activity files.

Earning Accreditation with Commendation means that LVHN has received a six-year accreditation term instead of the standard four-year term.

Congratulations to the LVHN Department of Education for achieving this high honor.

Coordinated Health–Allentown Receives Patient Safety Excellence Award

Coordinated Health–Allentown ranks among the top 10% of short-term acute care hospitals in the nation.

LVHN Insider

Tuesday, March 15, 2022

Coordinated Health, part of Lehigh Valley Health Network, is once again being recognized by Healthgrades for providing safe, high-quality care.

Coordinated Health–Allentown received a 2022 Patient Safety Excellence Award™, a distinction shared only by the top 10% of all short-term acute care hospitals in the nation.

“This recognition reflects our commitment to our patients,” says Amy Nyberg, Senior Vice President, Ambulatory Services, Lehigh Valley Health Network, and President, Coordinated Health. “We are proud to receive this award, but even prouder of our colleagues for continuing to deliver the high-quality care our patients expect and deserve.”

This is the fourth consecutive year Coordinated Health–Allentown has received this distinction from Healthgrades.

“Providing safe, high-quality care is a priority for us,” says Christine Biege, Vice President of Patient Care Services, Coordinated Health. “Receiving this recognition is a testament to our dedication to patient care, and I’m extremely proud of what we’ve been able to accomplish.”

Healthgrades studied 170,231 patient safety events involving Medicare patients from 2018 through 2020 and found four patient-safety indicators that accounted for 74% of all patient safety events.

These include in-hospital falls resulting in a hip fracture, a collapsed lung after a lung or chest procedure, bed sores experienced in the hospital and catheter-related bloodstream infections.

According to Healthgrades, patients who are treated by hospitals that receive a Patient Safety Excellence Award are less likely to experience in-hospital injuries or infections, including:

- 55.8% less likely to experience an in-hospital fall resulting in hip fracture.
- 52.6% less likely to experience a collapsed lung resulting from a procedure or surgery in or around the chest.
- 66.2% less likely to experience pressure sores or bed sores acquired in the hospital.
- 65.8% less likely to experience catheter-related bloodstream infections acquired in the hospital.

“Through our 2022 Patient Safety Excellence Awards, we seek to recognize hospitals that excel in providing top-quality care for their patients while preventing serious injuries during hospital stays,” says Brad Bowman, MD, Chief Medical Officer and Head of Data Science, Healthgrades. “We are proud to name Coordinated Health–Allentown as a 2022 Patient Safety Excellence Award recipient and look forward to their continued efforts to make patient safety a priority.”

Healthgrades provides information to the public about hospitals, doctors and health care organizations by evaluating health care records from Medicare.

COLLEAGUE STORY

#LVHNProud to Be an Athletic Trainer

Athletic trainer Liz Del Re shares her passion for her career in honor of National Athletic Training Awareness Month.

By Elizabeth “Liz” Del Re

Elizabeth “Liz” Del Re, LAT, ATC, is a certified athletic trainer with Lehigh Valley Health Network, serving student-athletes at Emmaus High School.

When I started college, there were moments where I questioned if I made the right choice to major in athletic training. Instead of switching majors, I continued my semester at Neumann University. It was a decision that gave me more than I ever could have imagined – a career I love, a community I care about and volunteer work that has taken me new places.

My first job after graduation was as a Lehigh Valley Health Network athletic trainer at Emmaus High School. I love the different dynamic that comes with each team I get to work with. It is very rewarding to watch student-athletes grow and be part of their successes and failures. I fell in love with everything about my job as an athletic trainer, which inspired me to find more ways to use my background to help others.

Volunteering with USA Wrestling

My passion for athletic training led me to apply for a volunteer program for sports medicine providers at the Opens in new tabOlympic and Paralympic Training Center \(OPTC\) in Colorado Springs. I received an email in 2018 saying I was selected to participate. During the two-week program, yet another opportunity came my way. I was so excited when asked to help cover a training camp for wrestlers hosted by Opens in new tabUSA Wrestling. Working with several athletes at once is what a typical day for me is like at Emmaus High School, so I jumped at the chance to help.

It became clear to me at the wrestling camp that I wanted to pursue more volunteer work with USA Wrestling. That led me to apply to be a medical volunteer within the organization. That September, I was off to Mexico for the Opens in new tabSchoolboy/girl Athlete Pan American Championships. That was just the beginning.

Since then, I’ve had the pleasure of traveling all over as a volunteer athletic trainer. I have been to Bulgaria, Hungary and most recently Colombia, where I covered the Opens in new tabCali 2021 Junior Pan American Games. The majority of athletes I work with are at the cadet level (under age 17). I love working with this age group because it’s not all about winning the competition. There is still a lot of fun associated with what the athletes do.

In my role as an athletic trainer, I specialize in the management, prevention and recovery of injured athletes. I collaborate with doctors to provide emergency and follow-up care to athletes. If an athlete sustains a laceration (skin wound) during a competition, I will address the bleeding. Then, the athlete would be seen by a physician for stitches, if needed.

Enter as athletes, leave as friends

I typically spend 12 days at a competition overseas with USA Wrestling. During those days of training and competition, I am in constant communication with the team to make sure the athletes receive the care or treatment needed. Whether it be before the competition, during a break or after the competition has ended for the day, I am ready to help.

I love the relationships I get to build with the coaches and athletes. With every trip, it ends up feeling as though I have known the team for a lifetime. The lasting friendships are what make my work truly special. To be an athletic trainer is an honor I cannot describe.
