OB/GYN Opens Birthing Room In Labor-Delivery Suite

The OB/GYN Department last week opened a Birthing Room in the Labor and Delivery Suite, the first of its kind in the Lehigh Valley. The first patient delivered last Saturday morning.

Known as an "alternative" form of delivery, the Birthing Room is designed to look and feel like a bedroom. Flowered paper covers the walls. Two easychairs flank the draped window. The rug and dropped ceiling mute sound. An ordinary room.

When the newborn arrives, the family will not be a typical delivery in a labor and delivery room. Children are permitted to participate in the birth process. The mother may wander about the room. IV's are discouraged and monitoring equipment is not allowed.

According to Dr. Robert McGuire, OB/GYN Educational Coordinator at the Hospital, the Birthing Room represents a turn away from the "unfriendly, cold, and austere" environment of the traditional labor room. He notes that a century ago most births occurred in the home. Today, most take place in the hospital, with a lowering of the maternal mortality rate to nearly zero, and a lowering of the infant mortality rate to the best in U.S. medical history.

However, over the past few years, the trend is back to home delivery and in some areas of the country 15 percent of the births are reported to be in the home. The risks of the newborn in home delivery increase at least twofold.

According to Dr. McGuire, the alternative is the Birthing Room like the one here. In the event that mother, newborn, or both are endangered, sophisticated medical help is available.

Prior the 1975 few hospitals offered birthing rooms. Today, however, more than 1,000 of the nations 6,500 hospitals offer this alternative.

The changeover from labor room to Birthing Room was relatively simple and inexpensive. Hospital maintenance department carpenters, electricians and painters completed the redecoration job in about a week.

According to Dr. McGuire, the

SALUTE TO THE HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The Allentown Hospital Auxiliary has once again provided the Hospital with a new and valuable service.

The most recent donation from the 350-member group was nearly $9,000 for the new Birthing Room in the Labor and Delivery Suite. The first patient delivered in the Birthing Room, March 24.

The Auxiliary funds were used to redecorate the Birthing Room and pay for labor costs. The most costly item for the room was the Birthing Bed which cost $5,000. Designed to resemble one in a bedroom, the bed breaks away into a delivery table at time of birth.

According to Mrs. Elmer Bausch, Auxiliary President, the group has donated approximately $450,000 to the Hospital in the past decade. In the last year the Auxiliary has donated about $70,000 for various services and equipment.

Last May the Auxiliary donated $50,000 for purchase of a Two Dimension Reel-Time Ultra Sound Unit in the Heart Station. The group also has donated $10,000 for new telemetry equipment in the Emergency Room.

The Auxiliary raises the funds through various benefits, according to Mrs. Bausch.

ALLENTOWN, ASHHC FILL RESIDENT SLOTS

The Allentown Hospital and ASHHC have selected 16 new residents for available first year slots in four post graduate residency programs at the two hospitals.

The residency programs include Internal Medicine, Flexible Medicine, Surgery, and Obstetrics and Gynecology, (OB/GYN).

All 16 new residents were "matched" to the residency programs-the programs represented their first choice and the hospitals selected the 16 as their first choice.

The matching process is conducted by computer with hospitals and physicians each paired according to preference.

In all there are 18 available first year slots in the four residency programs. The two remaining positions, one in OB/GYN and one in Surgery, will be filled prior to July when the programs begin for new residents.

The Medical and Flexible Medicine programs scored a "perfect match." The 12 new residents in both programs selected the programs and the hospitals selected the 12. Eight of the 12 will enroll in Internal Medicine, a three year program. The other four residents in the Flexible program will study four years.

The four residents in the Flexible program will study four years.

NEW BOARD MEMBERS

OB/GYN Opens Birthing Room In Labor-Delivery Suite

The birthing room concept encourages the family bonding process so often lost in the traditional labor and delivery setting. By the family unit sharing the experience, the joys, and the intensity of childbirth, the building of a tighter family unit (bonding) can occur.

Recent research supports the concept of bonding or close physical contact in the first hours and days after birth. After two years the bonded children studied were more verbal and scored higher in IQ tests. There is also evidence that children from the bonding process suffered less abuse, fewer accidental poisonings and weight gain problems.

Dr. McGuire notes that families involved in the bonding process are less likely to divorce and there is less sibling rivalry.

Efforts to strengthen the bonding process in the Allentown Hospital began a number of years ago with the establishment of prenatal classes for prospective parents. Later, fathers were permitted into the labor and then the delivery rooms. Presently, fathers can be present at most cesarean-sections. Also available are early postpartum nursing, rooming-in, and sibling visitations.

The Allentown Hospital Birthing Room was one of five labor rooms in the Labor and Delivery Suite where more than 2,000 births occur each year. As demand for new service increases, the Hospital may convert other labor rooms into birthing rooms.

In all there are 28 residents in the Medicine and Flexible programs and two Chief Medical Residents. Both programs are under the direction of Dr. Dean Dimick.

In the two other residency programs, three residents were matched in Surgery where four slots were open, and one resident was selected in OB/GYN where two slots were open. The remaining two positions will be filled before July 1.

In all there are a total of 13 surgical residents at both hospitals. The surgical program involves five years of training and is under the direction of Dr. Donald Gaylor.

The OB/GYN residency is a four-year program with a total of eight residents, two in each year. The program is limited to the Allentown Hospital. Program director is Dr. Robert McGuire.

PROGRAMS ACCREDITED

The three major medical residency programs at The Allentown Hospital and ASHHC have been re-accredited for a three-year period by the Liaison Committee on Graduate Medical Education (LCGME), a combined panel representing five medical groups in the country.

The residency programs approved were the Obstetrics and Gynecology (OB-GYN) program at The Allentown Hospital, Surgery at Allentown and ASHHC and Internal Medicine, also at both institutions.

LCGME is an accrediting body representing the American Board of Medical Specialties, the American Hospital Association, the American Medical Association, the Association of American Medical Colleges and the Council of Medical Specialty Societies. It thoroughly reviews all residency programs at hospitals throughout the country.

LETTERS . . .

March 19/79

Dear Mrs. McGonigle,

My name is Ellen Miller, I'm 26, married, and have two children. Recently on Feb. 5 of this year I was a patient on your ASU floor. I'm writing this letter to compliment the nursing staff, surgical staff, and anyone else involved with the unit.

I was nervous enough about going in for surgery; but going as an outpatient was less anxiety about being in a large ward and probably being forgotten the minute you arrive. Believe me I'm not the type that expects to be waited on, I'm more the type to worry about the next person.

I was nervous enough about going in for surgery; but going as an outpatient I was reluctant about being in a large ward and probably being forgotten the minute you arrive. Believe me I'm not the type that expects to be waited on, I'm more the type to worry about the next person.

More care, attention, and compassion any individual could not have wanted for. The floor that day was totally full and the nurses had their work cut out for them. It did not keep them from taking time with each person repeatedly as if you were in a private room. Their constant smiles helped lose the fear of surgery also.

I could go on and on but I'm sure to forget to praise something. Most times people write to complain but if something is good we fail to comment on it.

Please let the staff know that with the hundreds of people that pass through that unit every year and somedays they think their not appreciated for the hard work and kindness, believe me they are.

I compliment you and your staff in the ASU on an efficient and well run floor.

Thank-you again,

Ellen Miller
